

Education

Recreational Activities for Children

3554

Lego Activities with Children

606

LEGO-based, hands-on learning stimulates cognitive and social development, promotes problem-solving and motor skills, and supports the educational needs of children in an accessible and engaging manner. These activities help children cope with the trauma of war and displacement through play and constructive engagement.

Recreational activities offer safe and enjoyable spaces for play. These activities support the psychosocial development of

Youth & Adolescents

Maharati

Adolescents Girls

Recreational Activities Youth

Sports for Development

GIL

YFS

455

113

147

147

1420

88

Programs for youth and adolescents include Youth-Functional Skills (YFS), which serve as safe venues for socializing and learning new skills. Maharati sessions build life skills relevant to personal and professional development, career guidance prepares youth for future employment, and recreational activities provide a constructive outlet for relaxation and social bonding. The GIL activity focuses on equipping youth with essential skills in design thinking and business development. Through hands-on sessions, participants learn to brainstorm innovative solutions and transform ideas into actionable plans. Emphasizing creativity, problem-solving, and entrepreneurship, the GIL activity guides youth in developing business concepts that are not only economically viable but also socially responsible. This approach empowers young people to become proactive change-makers, enhancing their employability and encouraging them to contribute positively to their communities.

Child Protection

PSS for Children

389

PFA

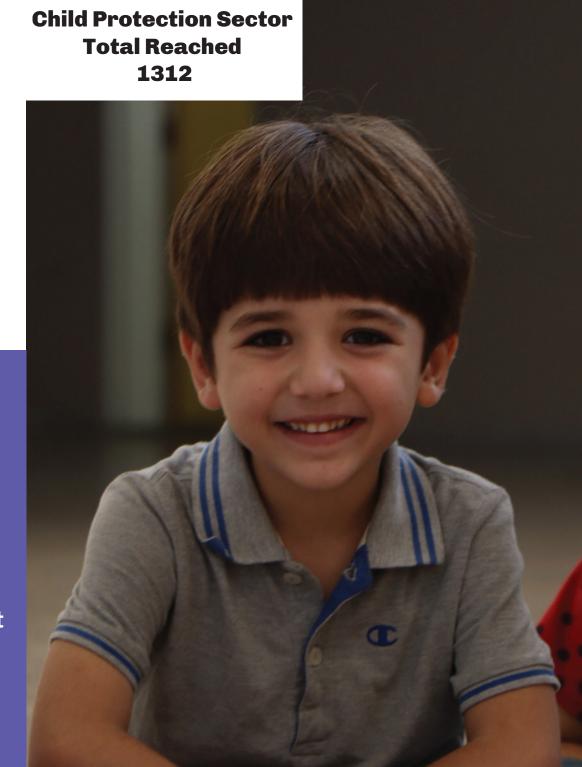

132

Awareness Hygiene with Children and Caregivers

791

The Child Protection component emphasizes community-based psychosocial support (CBPSS), creating safe and supportive environments where children can process their experiences, needs and emotions.

Activities include Psychological First Aid to support children in crisis, Prevention of Sexual Exploitation and Abuse (PSEA) sessions to foster safety and awareness, light PSS sessions offering structured group support, and recreational activities like art and theatre to enable creative expression.

Empowerment that Moves a Nation